

Abstract

A method, device and bus system for monitoring the distributed system made up of a plurality of users that are connected by one bus system, at least a number of the users being provided
5 as monitoring users, and process data of at least one monitored user being filed in data areas of memory units of the bus system, to which the monitoring users have access, and the process data being evaluated by the monitoring users.

(Figure 2)